

...THE BEST CHRISTMAS GIFT...

You can possibly make is Stock in the Argus Gold Mining Corporation while it is selling at the extremely low price of 30c Per Share--Par Value $1.00

Read This Carefully

By way of illustration, your attention is called to the following figures, which are reported from the celebrated "Homestake Mine," in South Dakota: It has declared to date dividends amounting to more than $27,000,000. Now the average value of the ore produced from the Homestake was $3.25 per ton, and it cost $2.48 per ton to mine; yet it paid the above millions in dividends. So for your information we are pleased to state that assays from ore taken from our mines will average much more per ton, and it costs less than $3.30 per ton to mine it.

$59.94 Per Ton Was Recently Assayed

From "run of mine" ore taken from one shaft in our mine, this is far beyond the average of any other mine in this country.

It is imperative that the most modern, high power machinery be installed at once, in order that the greatest possible saving can be made, and as soon as this is accomplished we will have equipment equalled by few and excelled by none.

This picture shows the crude ore as it is brought up from the shafts, ready to be treated.

If you could personally visit the mines of this company and see for yourself the rich deposits of gold, you would be instantly convinced. Twenty-two of Richmond's most prominent and conservative business men were convinced to the extent that they personally put up their good, hard cash to start the greatest mining industry this State has ever known. They have the plant in running order, are taking out the ore from a shaft which they have sunk to a depth of 150 feet and they want to raise enough money to install a great reduction plant—one that will treat at least 100 tons of ore per day. Now this plant costs money, and to those who are willing to start in on the ground floor they are offering the stock at only 30c. The par value is $1.00, fully paid and non-assessable. They are only going to sell 50,000 shares at this price. When they have been distributed the price will be advanced. So your opportunity is NOW, while the price is low. Investigate at once. Call at the office or use the coupon.

Positively only 50,000 shares, par value $1.00 will be sold at the low price of 30c. Mines are located in Fluvanna and Goochland Counties, six miles from Columbia and 58 miles from Richmond.

BIG COTTON MILLS TO FORM MERGER

Plans for Great Undertaking Being Matured in South Carolina.

NEW INDUSTRIES IN SOUTH
Unusual Activities in Many Lines of Enterprises in Dixie.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Baltimore, December 17.—Reports to the Manufacturers' Record show that during the past week great progress has been made in industrial activity throughout the South. Many enterprises of various kinds, some of them exceptionally large, have been undertaken and some have been announced as definitely placed under contract. In South Carolina plans are being matured for the merging of nine big cotton mills, with a capitalization of $10,000,000, the plans having in view the raising of a considerable amount of new capital and the development on broad lines of this great undertaking. Among the mills included are a number of the largest in the Piedmont section. Plans which have been under way for more than a year for the development of a great iron-ore field in Texas, with a view to shipping ore from Texas ports to Philadelphia for distribution to Eastern furnaces, are materializing, and it is anticipated that contracts will be let immediately for the construction of fifty miles of railroad from the Santa Fe system into the ore fields, which are to be developed with steam shovels and other modern improvements for the handling of ore in the field and at the docks in a large way. The increasing attention being given in the South to the raising of live stock has resulted in the organization of the Southern Packing Company, at Jackson, Miss., which has been incorporated with $1,000,000 capital stock, for the purpose of establishing a meat packing plant. Among the many enterprises of note reported during the week in the Manufacturers' Record, the following may be taken as indicative of the widespread activity and the diversity of enterprises involved.

An Atlantic company will establish a plant at Baltimore, expending about $500,000, for the construction and equipment of an eight-story and basement building of brick fireproof construction, with power plant, etc., providing facilities for light manufacturing in the upper stories.

Nollchuck Power Corporation, Erwin, Tenn., has plans and estimates for the water-power electrical plant, contemplating an installation to develop

POULTRY BREEDS FOR THE BEGINNER
White Leghorns for Eggs—Other Breeds for Broilers and Roasters.

BY WALTER C. SCHAEFF.
There is hardly a breeder of note who does not receive a great many letters containing a query something like this: "Which is the best breed to start with in order to succeed in building up a profitable business?" A general answer to this would be "The poultryman must make his selection of breed with a view to meeting the demand of his particular market. That is to say, in selecting the kind of fowl he wishes to keep he must consider whether he is to build up a strictly egg farm, a meat farm or a combination of eggs and meat."

This is an age of specialists, and the man who builds up a business in one branch, and then applies all his energies to pushing it, is the man who will climb to the top of the ladder.

All standard varieties of fowls possess merit, while some, the lighter breeds like Leghorns or Minorcas, while more adapted for the egg farm, while for broilers or roasters the heavier breeds such as Orpingtons, Plymouth Rocks, etc., are what you want. The beginner should select a breed that suits his purpose for whatever branch he intends to undertake and should stick to that one until he has become a master of it. It is absurd to start with a number of breeds with the idea of "testing their merits." In time comes out of ten you will never learn any one variety well enough to get the best out of it, and will have only poor success if you do not fall altogether. "Go slow" is an admonition that in the poultry business may be called a new golden rule, and in no business is it imperative. Whatever line you start out in, begin with good stock, as good as can be had, and always try to improve it and get the best out of it. Success is the natural result of "stick-to-itiveness" and application of our energies.

White Leghorns, Egg Makers.
The white Leghorn is pre-eminently the egg farm breed. They are prolific egg producers, non-sitters, early maturing and very hardy. They are medium in size and lay a good sized white egg. They generally do well either in confinement or on free range. The majority of breeders concede that they do their best if somewhat restricted in fairly good sized runs. When bred to good size, they are excellent, and in some sections, particularly in New Jersey, the white Leghorns are popular for the production of squabblers, broilers and even small roasters. Enthusiasts claim for them that they grow more quickly and are ready to market sooner than the larger breeds, but the beginner should be misled by such claims and should remember that while the Leghorns can and sometimes do prove profitable as market poultry, they are first and always an egg producing breed.

The white Leghorns are naturally great foragers and they are very hardy; are not easily put out of condition by improper feeding, and it is probably for this reason that more people are able to get satisfactory egg yields from them than from any other breed. They are an attractive fowl when well bred, particularly those whites with bright red combs, white earlobes and smooth yellow legs. Naturally non-sitters they do not give the owner trouble by going broody, and this in itself is a great advantage.

One of the reasons why the white Leghorn is so popular is that it produces a steady fresh egg supply, and this is a fact that a non-broody hen will "sneak down" on the eggs to start life before the owner gathers them. Sometimes a Leghorn will get broody, but when this happens "breaking up" will be found much easier than with the heavier breeds. Although naturally timid and very active, the Leghorn with good care and patience be handled as well as any other breed. Leghorns being non-sitters, the large egg farms rely on artificial incubation, and through handling the little ones while brooding are taking lots of wisdom out of the brooding instinct.

It is accomplished by patience along this line just the same as with any other part of poultry work, for without patience you are doomed to failure in the poultry business. If you are all ready to break Leghorns, send a string down to the Richmond Poultry Show in January. The Leghorn breeders are making a special effort to make their favorites the leading breed in the show room this year.

RIDE ALL NIGHT IN BUGGY TO ESCAPE GIRL'S PARENTS
Farmer 65 Years Old Takes Bride 16 Years, Rev. A. H. Burroughs Performing Ceremony.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Bristol, Va., December 17.—After riding all night in a buggy, exposed to ice and snow that held the mountains of Grayson county, in their grasp, Thomas P. Hamm, a well-to-do farmer, sixty-five years old, and Miss Phoebe Jane Adams, a pretty mountain girl of sixteen years, were married at the Bristol (Va.) Green to-day. Rev. Alfred Harrison Burroughs officiating. The all night drive was made necessary to escape from the parents of Miss Adams, who were strenuously opposed to the match on account of the age of Hamm. He from the exposure of the night drive, with the mercury not far from zero, the girl was barely able to stand when the ceremony was being performed. She took her bed immediately, complaining of a severe pain in her side, due to the chill she caught in crossing the mountains. In a day or two she will be able to get about. The bridegroom manifested a fatherly care for his child bride, James Hamm, insisting that they should not start on the journey until she had fully recovered.

DISCUSS COUNTY'S NEEDS.
Cumberland Citizens Discuss Matters to Be Brought Before Legislature. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Fayetteville, N. C., December 17.—An assemblage of unusual character gathered in this city shortly after noon to-day, when, in response to a call from Cumberland county's newly elected legislative representatives, citizens of the county met in mass-meeting to discuss the nature of legislation to be asked for at the session of the State lawmakers.

As a result of thorough discussion, resolutions were adopted requesting the Legislature to procure the establishment of a legalized primary for the county, and the purchase of bills authorizing a police justice court in Fayetteville, and giving one member of the Board of County Commissioners a salary sufficient to enable him to devote his entire time to the county's affairs, thus increasing the efficiency of this board.

No decisive action was taken on the most thoroughly discussed subject before the meeting, that of good roads. This question was referred to a meeting to be held January 7, which State Geologist Joseph Hyde Pratt was, by resolution, invited to address, and to form a good roads association at that time. Mayor James D. McNeill, of Fayetteville, was made chairman of a committee to draft a suitable good roads law to be submitted to the January session.

The putting of county offices on a salary basis was discussed, but no action was taken on this subject. The legislators at whose call the meeting was held, Major J. W. C. Candler, Captain A. D. McGill and Charles G. Rose.
